Piles! Piles!! Piles!! No One Need Suffer. A sure cure for blind, bleeding, itching and ulcerated Piles has been discovered by Dr. Williams (an Indian remedy), called Dr. Williams's Indian Pile Ointment. A single box has cured the worst chronic cases of 25 years' standing. No one will suffer five minutes after applying this wonderful soothing medicine. WILLIAMS'S INDIAN PILE OINTMENT absorbs the tumors, allays the intense itching (particularly at night after getting warm in bed), acts as a poultice; gives instant relief, and is prepared ONLY FOR PILES, itching of the private parts and nothing else. Read what Hon. Judge Collinbury, of Cleveland, says: "I have used scores of pile cures, and it affords me pleasure to say that I have never found anything which gave such immediate and permanent relief as Dr. Williams's Indian Pile Ointment. For sale by all druggists, or mailed on receipt of price, $1 per box. HENRY & CO., Cleveland O. John B. Groll, Agt., Newport, R. I., G. C. Goodwin & Co., Wholesale Agents, Boston, Mass. je14-eod&wsg

GREAT EXCITEMENT AT ALBANY.

THE DEMOCRATS AND THE HALF-BREEDS CHANGE THEIR TACTICS.

Three Ballots But no Choice.

ALBANY, June 22.—Immediately after the adjournment of the Investigating Committee this morning, the half-breed leaders held a caucus and agreed to adopt the following program in today's balloting.

Senator Lynde was instructed to arise on a question of privilege before the balloting began and announce that the half-breeds were willing to hold out a compromise of the following nature:—

1. They would vote solidly for one stalwart and one Administration man: the Administration man to be Depew; the stalwart to be any one except Conkling and Platt. Under no circumstances would they vote for either Conkling or Platt—not even if the deadlock should be maintained until December 31.

2. In order to show their sincerity, they would withdraw ex-Vice-President Wheeler entirely from their list of candidates, and concentrate upon any stalwart for Conkling's place other than Conkling or Platt. Lapham had been agreed upon as that candidate for the present, and the Wheeler vote was instructed to be cast for him.

Wells S. Dickinson, brother-in-law of Wheeler, who is here acting for that gentleman, was instructed to communicate with Mr. Wheeler. He did so, and received Mr. Wheeler's assent to the program as also his advice to the half-breeds to do all in their power to fully carry it out.

Mr. Dickinson was thereupon instructed by Mr. Robertson to notify all the half-breeds of the intended program.

The first joint ballot for a successor to Conkling resulted as follows:—

Conkling	32
Wheeler	40
Lapham	26
Cornell	2
Bradley	1
Folger	1
Rogers	1
Jacobs (Dem.)	52
Total	155

The first joint ballot for a successor to Platt resulted as follows:—

Depew	52
Kernan	53
Platt	26
Lapham	3
Wheeler	3
Crowley	7
Cornell	8
Bliss	1
Tremaine	1
Rogers	1
Total	155

The following is the result of the second ballot for Mr. Conkling's successor:—

Conkling	32
Wheeler	50
Lapham	1
Jacobs	12
Cornell	2
Daniels	1
Bradley	3
Potter	7
Hewitt	3
Kelly	3
Parker	3
Sawyer	1
Cox	2
Hoffman	2
Tilden	1
Westbrook	1
Corning	2
Peckham	4
Seymour	3
Bliss	2
Black	1
Kingsley	1
Babcock	1
Grace	1
Slocum	1
Thompson	1
Total	155

The second ballot for Platt's successor resulted as follows:—

Depew	50
Kernan	53
Platt	25
Cornell	8
Crowley	8
Tremaine	1
Wheeler	2
Lapham	4
Total	151

After the second ballot Senator Fowler arose and said he had an important statement to make. An emergency had arisen in which the candidacy of John C. Jacobs might lead to grave trouble for the Democracy. Jacobs had been nominated not by his own desire so much as by the partiality of his friends. The Republicans had raised the question of eligibility of Jacobs to the United States Senate on account of his being a State Senator and voting in the present election. If Jacobs should happen to have a majority of ballots cast when an election should be announced the Republicans might successfully impeach his election in favor of the Republican candidate having the next highest number of votes. He, therefore, at the request of Mr. Jacobs, withdrew the name of Jacobs in favor of Clarkson N. Potter, and asked to have his vote changed from Jacobs to Potter.

Great excitement and a general break up in the Democratic ranks followed the announcement.

The Democrats began to move to and fro making the wildest sort of attempts at combinations, the announcement of Mr. Fowler having been wholly unexpected and unprepared for. Mr. Hoskins had great difficulty in restoring order and when he had secured it the Democrats asked to have the list of Democratic Senators and Assemblymen record so that the Democrats desiring to change their votes could have their changes properly recorded. This was done. A number of changes were then announced.

Two Thousand Dollars Stolen from a Bank in Broad Day.

DETROIT, June 22. A bold bank robbery was perpetrated at the First National Bank of this city this noon. A small boy was sent into the cashier's private office, where he and the President were both engaged in signing new currency, requesting him to step to the sidewalk to see a man. The cashier stepped out of the bank, leaving the President busily engaged in signing sheets of currency. The man proved to be a stranger, who desired a loan, and detained the cashier a long time. Meantime two confederates went into the private office. One boldly stepped up to the President and inquired for the cashier by name, and was told that he would be in in a moment. The other scooped up a pile of signed bills, slipped them under his coat and quietly sauntered out, and was followed in a moment by his confederate. The amount taken is $2,080.

ACCIDENT ON THE OLD COLONY ROAD.

Loss of Life by the Carelessness of a Driver.

BROCKTON, Mass., June 22.—A terrible accident occurred here this morning in which one man was instantly killed and two so fearfully mangled that they will undoubtedly die. The fact sare as follows: As the eight o'clock train from Fall River was approaching Huntington Heights crossing, a mile north of this station, a hack drawn by two horses and driven by Michael Early was seen approaching the track. According to the statement of a bystander the engine struck the hack near the forward wheels, smashing it into a thousand fragments and precipitating the horses down an embankment into a marshy piece of land, nearly fifty feet away, killing one and badly injuring another. Early was thrown from his seat and landed some twenty-five feet from the crossing, and was instantly killed, while both occupants of the hack—James Bennett and James Shields—were terribly injured, to what extent, however, is not known here, as the train backed down and carried them to Boston to the Massachusetts Hospital. The team was owned by B. J. Keith. Early was about twenty-two years old.

FATAL RAILROAD ACCIDENT.

An Uncle of President Garfield Instantly Killed, and a Cousin Fatally Injured.

CLEVELAND, O., June 22. Shortly after 3 o'clock this afternoon, an eastbound train on the New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio Railway, when about twelve miles from here, struck a buggy in which were riding Thomas Garfield, uncle of President Garfield, and Mrs. Monzo Arnold, sister of Dr. Boynton and cousin of the President. Thomas Garfield was instantly killed and Mrs. Arnold's skull so badly fractured that her life is despaired of. Mr. Garfield was eighty years old and leaves seven children. The buggy was dragged about 200 feet before the train stopped. Gen. Garfield and Dr. Boynton were telegraphed to at Long Branch.

Improving the Missouri River.

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Io., June 22. At the Inter-State Convention here yesterday a resolution was adopted requesting Congress to make necessary appropriations for removing natural and artificial obstructions to navigation of the Missouri River, including railroad bridges, etc.; also for a thorough survey of the river with a view to deepening the channel, and that an appropriation of $5,000,000 would be just and proper. Addresses were made by Gov. Gear, United States Senator McSill of Iowa, Senator Saunders of Nebraska, C. F. Chase of Omaha and Hon. John Hogan of St. Louis.

AN EXTENSIVE CONFLAGATION.

Thousands of Acres of Wheat Destroyed.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 22. A dispatch from Merceda says a fire today swept over some 7250 acres of wheat and other grain, destroying everything in its course, including many farm-houses and much farming machinery.

FIRE AT THE MINES.

The Whole Town Probably Destroyed.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 22. A dispatch from Tombstone, Arizona, says the town is burning. A large portion of the place is already destroyed.

Fire at Utica, N. Y.—Loss $25,000.

UTICA, June 23. The house of Maurice Birdsall, in Greene, N. Y., was burned with its contents this morning. Loss $25,000.

.....Hubbard S. Stickle, of Rockaway, Morris county, N. J., who has just died, aged ninety-eight years, claimed to have been the first American child born—September 4, 1783—on the day after the formal acknowledgment by England of American independence.

.....It is understood that the late Joseph Mackay or Montreal, Canada, whose estate is valued at $1,000,000, bequeathed it all, except $150,000, which has been left to a niece, to protestant charities of Montreal and to the educational and missionary work of the Presbyterian Church in Canada.

CAUSE AND PREVENTION OF DAMP WALLS.—The dampness on the walls of brick and stone houses is often due to the cause which deposits moisture on a glass or pitcher filled with ice water and brought into a warm room. The walls become cold and remain so for a long time, and when the weather changes suddenly from cold to warm, the air is full of moisture and is deposited on the walls by the chill when the air strikes them. It is easily prevented, says a mechanical journal. No plaster should be put directly upon wood or stone. In its place furring strips should be nailed to the wall, and the laths should be put on these. Cellars are often made very damp in warm weather from the same cause, because of too much ventilation. The warm air pouring in becomes chilled and deposits its moisture till it runs in streams to the surprise of the housekeeper, who wonders how it is that the more her cellar is aired the dampier it becomes.

WEALTH IN NEW MEXICO.

Each year thousands of tourists and those who look for pleasure in gazing upon the ruins and monuments of the past, leave America to visit the continent of Europe, the deserts of Asia, the valley of the Nile, ignorant that America, though so young in its modern development and the institutions of today is yet hoary with an age that reaches far beyond the memory of man. The civilization of America is new, but the rocks and strata of her mountains prove that she was old when Europe was young; and that, before the islands of Greece were born or Egypt had an existence above the waters of the sea, the sun shone down and lighted up the Sierras of New Mexico.

The New Mexico climate, with its pure air, clear days, and mountain breezes, is a land of sunshine and a paradise for the sick and sorrowing. It covers an area of about three hundred and sixty miles square. Its highest mountain peaks are about fourteen thousand feet above the level of the sea. The mean elevation of its valley is about five thousand feet.

New Mexico is preeminently the finest sheep country in America: nature has incontrovertibly demonstrated it. Millions of pounds of wool are annually shipped. The elevated table lands are the sheep-owner's and the sheep-herder's delight. The famous Grama grass grows luxuriantly. Upon the abundance of these grasses, sheep fatten and retain their fatness during all seasons of the year.

Stock raising has for many years formed one of the leading interests of New Mexico, though the business is, comparatively speaking, in its infancy.

The valleys of the streams throughout southern New Mexico are remarkably productive. The mission grape here grows in greater perfection than on the Pacific coast, owing to the greater dryness of the atmosphere and the presence in the soil of chemicals there lacking, which add to its sweetness and flavor.

Fruits and vegetables of almost every variety, including the fig and other semi-tropical products, grow to perfection; and the ordinary cereals flourish everywhere.

The dreary deserts present a golden opportunity for landless Irish patriots. Six hundred and forty acres can be obtained for twenty-five cents. Any citizen or person of age who has filed his declaration to become such, is entitled to the above by conducting water upon the same within three years.

New Mexico is filled with ruins and relics and deserted dwellings of an extinct race, also the ruined cities of a prehistoric age. Medicinal springs are found scattered through this country.

The general mineral belt of the continent runs through Southern New Mexico. The Rocky Mountain chain here breaks, and San Simon, Grant County, New Mexico, is the mother-bed of all the mineral wealth of the world. The veins are porphyry and quartz, and also granite and porphyry. They are true fissure and contact, of great extent, and permanent depth; rich in gold, silver and copper, the outcroppings standing, in some places, fifteen to twenty feet high, and easily traced. Mining developments are carried on continually, the climate being such that a laborer can sleep in the open air all the year round; the average temperature is 65 degrees. The Sterling Price, and South Virginia Mines, lay at an elevation of about 5,000 feet, on one of the lower ridges of the Steins Peak or Peloncillo range of the Sierra Madre mountains, are five miles south of the Southern Pacific Railroad, and very near the Arizona and Old Mexico line. The croppings are bold and strong, showing splendid metal immediately from the surface, the vein runs southeast and northwest, 3,000 feet on the lode, stands nearly vertical, is of immense magnitude; crops, boldly above the surface. The ore which is smelting consists of gray copper, silver, gold, lead and iron. Recent averages made of ore, gave: gold, $700; silver, $80; copper, forty-nine per cent.; lead, twenty-eight per cent., and magnetic iron, seventeen per cent. Coal and iron abound in this vicinity. Railroads now run across and through the entire territory.

OLD-SILVER HUNTING IN BERGEN.

One of the most novel pleasures in Bergen is old silver hunting. There are shops where old silver is to be bought in abundance and at dear prices;—old belts, rings, slides, buttons, brooches, spoons, of quaint and fantastic styles, some of them hundreds of years old. But the connoisseur in old-silver hunting will not confine his search for treasures to the large shops on the thoroughfares. He will roam the city, keeping a sharp eye for little boxes tucked up on walls of houses, far down narrow lanes and by-ways,—little boxes with glass sides, and a silver spoon or two, or an old buckle or brooch, shining through. This is the sign that somewhere in that house he will come on a family that has tucked away in some closet a little box of old silver that they will sell. Often they are workers in silver in a small way; have a counter in the front parlor, and a tiny work room opening out behind, where they make thin silver spoons with twisted handles, and brooches with dangling disks and crosses, such as all the peasant women wear today, and 100 years hence their grandchildren will be selling to English and American travelers as "old silver." The next century, however, will not gather such treasures as this one: there is no modern silver to compare with the ancient. It is marvellous to see what a wealth of silver the old Norwegians wore; buckles and belts which are heavy, buttons which weigh down any cloak, and rings under which 19th-century fingers, and even thumbs, would ache. And the farther back we go the weightier become the ornaments. In the museum of northern antiquities in Copenhagen are necklaces of solid gold, which it seems certain that noble Norwegian women wore in King Olaf's time,—necklaces in shape of a single snake, coiled, so heavy that they are not easily lifted in one hand; bracelets, also of the same snake shape, which a modern wrist could not wear half an hour without pain.—["H. H." in June Atlantic.

WHY PEOPLE KILL THEMSELVES.

Heredity comes in for a share, so do the seasons, as summer is more prolific than winter, and the fact is noticed that where one case occurs, others are likely to follow in the same locality. A goodly number are only chance, as hysterical girls generally see that some one is by to rescue them before they take the fatal plunge. Dickens hits home when he makes one of his oddities remark on this subject: "Oh'y mind you there must be somebody comin.' They don't go a-headering down here when there ain't no body by but gen'ral rove to hear the splash." Mr. Horsley thinks that Hood's "Bridge of Sighs," written with the sole object of evoking charity for the despised, has yet with a certain class tinged suicide with a halo of romance, and afforded a justification of cowardice and crime to the unreasoning and hysterical. The only cure he proposes is to have every such attempt punished, and he says: "I firmly believe that if it became the exception instead of the rule for such offenses to escape a period of hard labor, the number of attempts would at once, and to a remarkable extent, diminish."

Baltimore is very warm in summer, more so than places farther South, as the stone pavements radiate the heat, but the climate is usually quite mild the rest of the year, though this spring malaria has attacked many strangers. Many social questions here present themselves for the mode of living is far different from more northern cities. With negro servants anxious for a home at any price, and with the remembrance of slavery but slowly dying out, it is considered the necessary thing for every lady to support at least one servant, who must attend the door and alone be seen at work, while liveries are maintained by all the old families. Indeed, comfort abounds though salaries are small, living, however, being proportionately cheap, for here is the cheapest and most varied market in America. A Southern woman traveling in New England astonishes her friends on returning by her description of how Northern women do their own work. Life in this place quickly convinces one how little animosity there is between the North and South when once acquainted. In all the election debates here last fall I heard not so much bitterness as in one day in the Senate. Another subject is soon to be presented to a stranger, the—for American—great number and eminent respectability of Catholics in this first seat of their religion. No city, in this country at least, furnishes such favorable opportunity for the study of Romanism in its best phases. [Cor. Springfield Republican.

The shore of the Old Colony, on the line of the road by the same name which daily carries large numbers of passengers to that Mecca of all American pilgrims, Plymouth Rock, has, within a year or two, felt the impetus of a wave of progress and prosperity excelling anything in its previous history. From Hingham to Plymouth men of means have established themselves by the "sounding sea" at points where the eye can regale itself at once upon beautiful marine views and charming landscapes. But the greatest change of all has occurred in the town supposed anchored to the past. Plymouth is rapidly becoming a popular seaside resort. Several of the numerous ponds within its limits have been utilized by the erection of buildings suited to summer occupancy. South Plymouth has assumed a very attractive appearance with its fine residences and the tasteful laying out of the grounds adjacent to them. Boston people are preparing to enjoy themselves all along the coast from the head of Plymouth Beach to and including Manomet Bluffs. [Boston Transcript.

GLEANINGS AND GOSSIP.

Upward of $29,000 has been subscribed for the New York Wall-street statue of Washington, and $50,000 will be needed.

The Seaman's Aid Society of Portsmouth, N. H., furnished 16,263 meals and 846 lodgings to unfortunate "clacks" during the year.

A Peoria lady picked up the other day two dead English sparrows, their bills interlocked so firmly that they could not be separated until broken.

The pipes by which fifty houses were supplied with water from a private reservoir in Norwich, Conn., were shattered by lightning recently to such an extent that it will be cheaper to abandon the entire system, introduced at a cost of $10,000 than to make the repairs.

Kickapoo, Ill., has a dog that some time ago disappeared. The other day he returned a mere skeleton. It was then discovered that the dog had dug into a gravel and sand bank for a skunk, throwing the dirt behind him, and after he had caught and killed the skunk he found himself in a tomb, from which it took him sixteen days to dig out.

Twenty-six young Indians, from the Hampton Normal and Agricultural Institute, ranging from ten to twenty years, have been forwarded to Stockbridge, Mass., to go into the service of Berkshire farmers during the hot weather. In the fall they return to their studies. They are mostly from the Sioux nation.

A Georgia negro, who has returned after ten years' absence in Liberia, says that nearly all the negroes there would return to the United States if they had the money. He describes the climate as very warm—no difference between summer and winter. Coffee and ginger are the only money crops. The people live on fruits and "cassadas," a kind of root something like a sweet potato. These crops are never gathered, but taken from the ground as they are wanted for food. Plows are not used in the cultivation of the land. The cotton plant becomes a tree and bears cotton annually.

Cardinal Newman is probably coming to London in July—somewhat to the concern of his friends, who dread the effects of the hot weather. When his Eminence was last in town he was so oppressed by the atmosphere that he did not close an eye for a couple of nights; and the Duke, with whom he stayed in St. James's Square, was really relieved when he saw the last of his venerated friend, his Grace feeling keenly the responsibility of harboring a guest with so precious a life. NEWPORT DAILY NEWS AND THE NEWPORT JOURNAL.

The Newport Daily News is published every afternoon (Sundays excepted), at the News building, 187 Thames street, by Davis & Pitman.

The Newport Journal is published at the same office every Saturday morning and contains a selection of the best matter in the Daily, including editorial discussions of the topics of the week, literary miscellanies and at least one good story, and a complete and comprehensive summary of news,—local and general. The Journal is a large 36 column paper and contains a large amount of reading matter that is valuable to readers in town or country who desire a good Newport paper, but who do not take a daily from the city.

Complaints regarding the irregular or improper delivery of either paper should be sent to the office at once.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

The Daily News, $6 per annum, or 12 cents a week, payable to carrier.

The Newport Journal will be sent to any address in the United States, postage paid, for $2 a year. A discount of 40 cents is made when the whole year is paid strictly in advance. These terms are invariable.

ADVERTISING RATES.

Ordinary advertisements, $1 a square, for the first insertion, and 25 cents for each continuance. Ten lines, or less, in this type, make a square. Advertisements in reading matter are charged for, at 50 per cent. extra and are subject to editorial revision. A discount on these rates is allowed on all advertisements ordered in the Daily for one week or longer. Funeral notices 50 cents each. Yearly advertisers are limited to their immediate business and are allowed twenty-five changes a year. The circulations of the News and Journal being necessarily distinct, an advertisement inserted in both papers will reach entirely different sets of readers. As further inducement for advertisers to use both News and Journal, a liberal discount on the combined rates is made.

PRINTING.

Connected with the News is a large and well appointed job printing office. All orders for work in this department will be promptly filled, and at reasonable prices. The patronage of the public is respectfully solicited.

Newport Daily News.

THURSDAY, JUNE 23, 1881.

The removal of Assistant Secretary Upton, of the Treasury Department, is, like the removal of Pension Commissioner Bentley, of doubtful advisability.

Ex-President Hayes has written to Secretary Blaine to deny that he has spoken disparagingly in public of the Secretary of State. The language attributed to Mr. Hayes was so utterly unlike his usually cautious and inoffensive speech that Mr. Blaine need hardly have broken his long silence toward the ex-President.

The signs of a break-up at Albany are likely to be intensely gratifying to the public at large, which does not care so much who succeeds as that some one shall succeed. Mr. Jacobs's withdrawal is timely, and if the Democrats wish to continue to vote for one of their own party they cannot do better than support him. The possibility of new and unforeseen alliances makes the situation very interesting at this moment.

The Boston Advertiser expresses the belief that the Irish Land bill is likely to become a law, and adds:—"The action of the government has deprived Mr. Parnell of his trade for the present, and he has not yet discovered anything new with which to fire the Irish heart into discontent and disorder. Mr. Parnell, moreover, struggles against nature; for it is unnatural to make people dissatisfied and leave them so. The tenants must have begun to find that out by this time: for the legitimate results of their many meetings, their excitement and their expenses have been exceedingly slight. It is announced that Mr. Parnell is to sail for this country on a political tour. Let him come by all means. He can do no particular good in Ireland, and he will do no special harm in this country. He will receive a fair hearing, and the dispassionate manner in which he will be judged by the American people will do him good."

The announcement that M. Camille Faure, a French electrician, had succeeded in bottling up electricity in such a way that it could be carried about and applied for lighting and motive purposes wherever needed, caused a momentary sensation in the scientific world. The electricians, however, threw cold water on the idea, and it seems probable that M. Faure's invention will prove as elusive an ignis fatuus as Mr. Edison's electric light. The London Journal of Gas Lighting, (an unfriendly critic, perhaps) denies that stored electricity has, thus far, commercial advantages over continuous currents—just as with gas. The Revue Scientifique of Paris gives the credit of M. Faure's idea to M. Plante, and regrets that M. Faure has resorted to advertising when he ought to have explained himself to physicists of good standing. Other French and English scientists ridicule the reported invention. The public will probably share their incredulity. People have grown suspicious of reported triumphs in electric lighting.

With President Garfield and Secretaries Windom, Hunt, James, Lincoln and MacVeagh at Long Branch, and a cabinet council in session for the consideration of the public affairs, the great New Jersey resort appears to have become as much the summer capital as it was during General Grant's term. There really can be no reasonable objection on the part of the public to the transaction of a certain share of the Government's business elsewhere than at Washington at the season when life at the White House is intolerable. The statesmen who built the Executive Mansion on the Potomac flats must have contemplated some such state of affairs. Calcutta is not much hotter in summer than Washington, and yet the Indian seat of government is officially removed throughout the entire hot season to Simla, in the mountains. A similar change in the official summer residence of the chief executive of this republic may sometime be found necessary or desirable. When that time comes it is needless to say that Newport will be the point selected for the summer capital. Doubtless Presidents go to Long Branch now, instead of to Newport, only because they fear to offend public opinion by residing too far away from Washington.

We have not called public attention to the disappearance of Mr. William F. Murray, for the reason that the hope has been indulged that his absence is temporary and for some good and sufficient cause. But as the days pass on and nothing is heard of him there is reason to fear a serious turn of affairs. Mr. Murray came to Newport a few weeks since with letters of introduction and commendation and applied for work on the Daily News where he was employed as an assistant editor. During his connection with the office he has been steady and industrious and apparently much interested in his work. He has been somewhat low spirited since the death of his mother which occurred since he has been here though this has been manifested more at his boarding house than at his place of business. On Monday evening he left the office as usual, but did not go to his boarding place and has not been seen, or heard of since. All his clothing and other effects remain just as usual and there is no evidence that he had a thought of abandoning them, or made any arrangements for leaving the city. He has no friends or acquaintances in Newport except such as he has made during his brief sojourn. Those best acquainted with him have fears of serious results. The police have been notified and asked to investigate the case and it is hoped that some trace of the missing man may soon be found.

CANADIAN ANNEXATION.

Professor Goldwin Smith, in taking his departure for England, expressed himself as convinced of the certainty of Canada's annexation to the United States. He says that he is not an annexationist in the party sense, but would not hinder manifest destiny if he could. He decidedly favors a commercial union of the Dominion and the United States. He thinks it will be brought about and that it is as necessary to Canada as it will be beneficial to the United States. Mr. Goldwin Smith has often expressed similar views, so that his present utterances will make no sensation, either in Canada, the United States or England. Although he disclaims being an annexationist in the party sense, Mr. Smith has certainly conducted something like an annexationist propaganda ever since he has lived in Canada. Articles on the subject from his pen have been given wide circulation in newspapers and magazines, and their burden has always been the same—the advantage to be derived by both Canada and the United States from political as well as commercial union. Mr. Smith's efforts, however, have not been followed by any perceptible movement on their side of the line in favor of annexation. A certain number of discontented Canadians, indeed, have professed to favor political union with the United States, but they are not sufficiently numerous or influential to constitute a political party. Their designs are executed by the mass of Canadian citizens whose desire to remain under the British flag is unquestionable. The proposition for commercial union, however, is not regarded by the Canadians with any particular disfavor; their views on this subject will no doubt be prompted by their material interests, and a zollverein between the states and the provinces is not by any means out of the question.

The people of the United States for the most part regard the question of Canadian annexation with absolute indifference. With most of us there is a vague belief in "manifest destiny"—a certain latent feeling that both Canada and Mexico will sometime come under the American flag. But while this feeling exists, there is evident not the slightest disposition in any quarter to hasten the tendency toward ultimate union. As to whether it shall take place in twenty years, in fifty years, or in a hundred years, the American citizen is quite indifferent. He proposes to leave the Canadians to their own desires: and unless the ideas of Professor Goldwin Smith suddenly become more popular in the Dominion than they are at present, the union is not likely to be very near.

LIQUOR LICENSES ON THE AVENUE.

To the Editor of the Daily News:—

I have observed with pleasure the efforts which are making to abolish the liquor traffic on Bellevue avenue, and the action of the Board of Aldermen in rejecting the application of Whittaker & Blewitt for a license will be approved by every one not interested in the traffic, especially in view of the fact that it is currently reported that Mr. Alfred Smith, in renting the store to these people, assured them that he would use his influence with the Board of Aldermen to procure them a license.

He is, I believe, the owner of a large piece of property on the avenue in which this selling is carried on, and has besides heavy mortgages not only on the place rented to Whittaker & Blewitt but also on at least three other similar establishments there.

Would it not be for his interest to cease using his influence in favor of licenses there and exert it in a contrary direction? "NEW YORK."

THE NEW SCHOOLHOUSE.—The award for building the new schoolhouse has been made to Perry G. Case & Co. for $17,800. It will be remembered that this building is erected with the money arising from the lease of Long Wharf as was the case with the Willow street schoolhouse, which cost the city nothing.

BLOCK ISLAND.

(From an occasional correspondent.)

A grand temperance meeting was held here Tuesday evening under the auspices of the lodge of I. O. G. T. It was held in the First Baptist Church and was presided over by the pastor, the Rev. Mr. Durfee, Mr. A. L. Parker, Grand Worthy Chief Templar of R. I., being present in the absence of the Rev. Mr. Gerrish, of Dieeyville, who was to have spoken. The services of the Rev. Hervey Wood, of New York city, were secured and a very large and attentive audience gave the very best attention from the beginning to the close. Mr. Wood said that he believed any very permanent work in connection with this cause must be grounded on an enlightened public opinion and hence he urged the members of the lodge to become educators of the public sentiment on this temperance question. He showed that development was possible on the total abstinence plan and quoted the case of Samson from the Bible and of the modern athletes who tells us that while training, they shun all alcholic and narcotic indulgences. He also pointed out the effect of alcohol on the brain, and gave some startling facts, in regard to the effect of indulgence by engineers, captains and crews, and said he hoped the day was not far distant when a law would be passed and enforced prohibiting the sale of liquors on steamboats and trains. He gave some startling facts as to ocean steamers from personal observation.

These meetings of late have been frequently disturbed by a drunken rowdy element who have gone in to disturb the meetings, there being no police in the place and the constable not being properly authorized to act. The powers that be ought to look into this matter.

—The Board of Aldermen this morning again gave Whittaker & Blewett leave to withdraw a second application for a license to sell liquor on Bellevue avenue.

—Stone Mill Lodge No. 3, A. F. & A. M., will observe St. John's day by a promenade concert and strawberry festival at Odd Fellows' hall tomorrow evening. The lady friends of the lodge will present them with a banner. The Newport orchestra, Prof. Mathers, will be present and furnish music.

—HISTORICAL.—The first number of Vol. 2d of the Newport Historical Magazine makes its appearance today. It contains valuable papers never before published relating to the original grant of lands to the early settlers of Newport, including the lands of Wm. Dyre, John Clark, and Jeremy Clarke. Other valuable papers follow on topics of interest to every one who wishes to be informed concerning the early history of the town. The magazine may be had at the news room of R. H. Tilley.

The auction sales of paintings will take place in the south store of the News building instead of in Odd Fellows' building as before.

SANITARY INSANITIES.

Torturing one's body every morning with a cold bath.

Taking long walks and fatiguing oneself to the verge of exhaustion for exercise.

Working with dumb-bells in a close, unventilated room.

Cultivating one set of muscles and neglecting the rest.

Trying to diet or starve oneself into health.

Refusing to eat meat and eggs under the impression that such foods are "stimulating," and trying to extract nutriment, strength and vigor from bran, or something very like it, because it's not "stimulating."—[Graphic.

Congressman Thomas L. Young, of Ohio, in conversation with a correspondent of the Cincinnati Enquirer, said that Sherman was slaughtered at Chicago by his alleged friends. He was asked who spent the money, and replied:

"Why, this little fellow Nichol, who has been writing letters, claiming to have been Garfield's Secretary, &c. Did you ever see that man?" said Young. "You put your eyes on him and you won't trust him. I think God Almighty has set his mark on the countenances as well as on the soul, and that countenance I would not trust. He is one of those retiring, suspicious, doubled up little effigies, always listening and getting in somewhere. I believe he hailed from the Northwest somewhere, when he rung in as the abnoner of Sherman. Next he went to Mentor during the election. I suppose that Garfield would like to have run him out of the house, but did not know just now; and he began to open letters, as he says, from this public man and that. He might have read my letters and yours, and now he is coming out with articles stating their contents. I don't take any stock," said the Governor, "in any such man."

WARS OF THE HUMMING BIRDS.

Whenever it happens that two of the species meet among many flowers, they signal the encounter with a shrill war-cry and dash at each other in fierce antagonism. The spirit of Bellona inflames their souls. For an instant they chase together then give each other chase, and with the speed of meteors are lost to my view. Shortly after, the return of one alone announces that the victory has been quick and decisive. Diminutive as are these puny sprites, they are heavily charged with combativeness. The entire race are pugnacious and quarrelsome to an extraordinary degree, impudently assaulting each other, and birds of much greater size which venture into their neighborhood or accession them a fancied annoyance. Even the hawk is not safe from their attacks, and has been seen worried and whipped by them. Mr. Bates remarks, in delineating their truculent disposition and the perpetual battles occurring in every flowery nook in the tropics where they congregate. One will knock another off its perch, and the two will go fighting and screaming away at a pace hardly to be followed by the eye.—[Harper's for June.

PIGEONS.

Next morning we started out early and proceeded at once to the Piazzo San Marco, where the pigeons flocked in great quantities. They perched upon our heads, shoulders and arms, besides there being a great many around our feet. We broke the crumbs off for those on the ground while such as were on our arms and hands picked for themselves, and those on our shoulders took the pieces from our mouths. Ma could not get any to perch on her head or shoulders until the bread was nearly gone, when she got furious, as she is a great lover of pets, and I think I heard her say: "I will not budge from here all day if they do not light on me." At last they did so, and she was happy. It was a tender, pretty sight as we walked nearly across the square, covered and surrounded with them, hovering over our heads and fluttering at our feet.—[Venetian Correspondence Detroit Free Press.

ARTEMUS WARD.

I do not remember to have seen any notice of Artemus's happy use of pantomime in his humorous moods among his friends and associates. There was an unapproachable eloquence sometimes in it. He had a way of making quotation marks in the air with his left and right forefingers, on occasion, that was irresistibly funny. Once he was engaged to fill an evening in the lecture course of a New England city. During the lecture an individual who occupied a seat on one of the front benches seemed determined to resist the speaker's efforts to make him laugh. Artemus soon discovered both the listener and his intention and concentrated all his powers on him. For a long time it seemed as if the man had the best of it, but by and by one of Brown's queer conceits took effect. The obstinate fellow gave way and laughed and kicked like a delighted schoolboy. Artemus celebrated his victory by loudly announcing to his audience: "Ladies and gentlemen, this will terminate the first act, and we will drop the curtain for a few moments; while the scenery is being arranged for the next act the lecturer will take occasion to 'go out to see a man;' and with perfect sang froid he left the platform for the ante room, where he quietly refreshed himself with weak tea and a cracker, and gleefully told the story of his contest.—[Portland Press.

THE LATE T. HOWARD PETERSON.

The funeral of the late T. Howard Peterson occurred at Philadelphia yesterday. It was conducted in the most private manner possible. The Philadelphia Times gives the following particulars of his disappearance and of the search which was made:—

The theory of Mr. Peterson's family is that he strolled along the government pier and through tripping or slipping lost his balance and fell into the water. The dangerous nature of the place is well known. At that time of year no one was within sight or call to render aid and the ice-cold water soon put an end to the unhappy man's struggles for life. In accordance with this belief an untiring watch has been kept up for the body and a great number have been inspected in vain. Expectation of its recovery had been well-nigh abandoned.

The sudden and unaccountable disappearance of Mr. Peterson on Sunday, the sixth day of February last, created a profound sensation at the time, and nothing which money and the best detective skill could do was left undone to find some trace of him. His wife, to whom he was deeply attached, had been ordered to Atlantic City by her physician, and on Saturday, February 5, Mr. Peterson went down to see her, accompanied by his wife's young sister. He was cheerful and apparently happy, and on Sunday morning went out driving. He intended to return to Philadelphia that evening, but his young sister-in-law wanted to stay longer with her sister, and at her request he decided to postpone his return until the following morning. On Sunday afternoon, about three o'clock, he told the ladies that he would go out for a walk, and from that time until his body was found yesterday no trace of him was ever discovered. Pinkerton's detective force were put upon the case, together with the Atlantic City police, and not only was every part of the island searched, but the country was scoured for thirty miles around. Then on the statement of Conductor Kelly, of the Narrow Gauge Railroad, whose train left Atlantic City at seven o'clock on Monday morning, that Mr. Peterson had come up on his train, every station house, prison, hospital, railroad depot and steamship office was visited in the bare hope of finding some clue, though Mr. Peterson's family always believed that Conductor Kelly was mistaken, though two persons were found in Atlantic City who claimed to have seen him get upon the train. After the search had been continued for several days, the widest publicity was given to the case through newspapers. What made the disappearance all the more mysterious and convinced his friends that he had been either accidentally drowned or foully dealt with was Mr. Peterson's enviable condition in life. He was the father of two lovely children, to whom he was devotedly attached, was possessed of ample means, lived in magnificent style in the most aristocratic part of the city and was very domestic in his habits, having no associations outside of his family circle and his counting house. He attended strictly to business and was never intoxicated in his life. His strange disappearance, which is now so sadly cleared up, plunged his family into the deepest grief and nearly killed his father.

A TRAFFIC IN HUMAN BEINGS.

The attention of the government of this republic has been called to the existence of a horrible and nefarious traffic which is carried on over the Brazilian frontier. It is a traffic in human beings, a veritable slave trade which the civilization and humanity of the age condemn with horror. The Indians of the Caqueta, a Columbian territory on the Brazilian border, sell the prisoners which are taken in the frequent wars among their various tribes, to the Brazilian traders who visit them every year. The poor captives suffer terrible hardships in their course down the Amazon and its tributaries to the agricultural regions below, and here the horror of their situation is intensified, if possible, as they are sold as slaves to the planters, when their doom of perpetual servitude is sealed. The traffic has been going on for years, and we hope, in the interests of poor helpless humanity, the Columbian government will make such representations as will put a stop to such a disgrace forever.—[Panama Star and Herald, May 12.

AT HOWARD'S.

The Casino fronts on Bellevue avenue, and in its lower story are the fascinating shops which cater to the summer guests and which are no mean attractions. Here are branches of the most famous bric-a-brac stores in New York, and shops stocked with the latest Paris novelties. You can put a year's salary (if you are a newspaper man) into a bedstead or a Sèvres tête-à-tête déjeuner set of china. In at Howard's yesterday, I looked over for an hour, silver toys of the last century, quaint bits of pleasantry, such as pigs riding in barrows, tiny men carrying quarters of beef on their shoulders, water carriers and grotesque little figures, all worked out of precious metal. These are the latest rage, and one by one they have been picked up by American agents, who scour Dutch and German households in search of them. I must tell you, too, the latest fashion in rings, as shown at Howard's. Three circlets are worn on one finger, one of diamonds, one of sapphires and one of pigeon-blood rubies. Eleven hundred dollars was paid for three of these tiny loops at this establishment the other day, for a gift for a fair lady. —[Cor Boston Transcript.

A MAMMOTH BOOK.—It requires not less than 1764 closely printed pages of large octavo size to make up Trow's new New York City Directory, which is published this week. This great volume includes only the names of heads of families, persons over age and business men and women. These 1764 pages of names represent 3528 columns each of which is seven and five-eighths inches long, the total length being only a trifle less than half a mile, while if the names and addresses were stretched out lineally one after another they would reach through a distance of over twenty-two miles, and the list would be nearly twice as long as Manhattan island itself.

CAMEL RIDING.

The complaints which have been made of the difficulty of riding a camel—of the headache and nausea it causes proceed, in General Colston's opinion, from travellers who do not know how to ride him. After the rider has once mastered the art of mounting and dismounting, there is no further trouble; and anyone accustomed to horseback may, in the General's opinion, learn in a single day to ride and manage the camel. "He is the most docile and manageable of all animals, excepting only the Egyptian donkey." The simple art of easy camel-riding consists chiefly in not permitting your camel to walk, except in deep sand, or over steep, rocky ground, where you cannot help it. "There is not a more back-breaking, skin-abrading motion than a camel's walk; but if you press him into a gentle pace, which is the natural gait of a dromedary, he moves both legs on the same side together. Thus he will go all day, with perfect ease to you, and no fatigue to himself, at the rate of about five miles an hour. In that gait his motion feels exactly like that of a very easy trotting horse, though, of course camels are like horses, some moving easier than others. With every increase of the rapidity of his gait, he 'goes rougher.' The higher speed of the dromedary enables the traveller to ride on in advance, and take two or three rests in the course of the day, in order to allow the slower burden camels to come up. But they all camp together at night (Chambers's Journal.

A CANNON TO SHOOT TEN MILES.

The making of the patterns for the Lyman-Hackell accelerating or multichange gun, at the Scott foundry of the Reading Iron Works, has been begun. The gun will be twenty five feet long and have a bore six inches in diameter. Along the bore four pockets will be located, in each of which a charge of powder will be placed, with the view of accelerating the speed of the ball after it leaves the chamber of the gun and during its progress through the bore. Experts who have seen the drawings and have given the subject of the manufacture of heavy ordnance a study have expressed the opinion that the gun will throw a ball a distance of ten to twelve miles, whereas five miles is a good range for the best cannon. The charge of powder will be 130 pounds, and the weight of shot 150 pounds. It is calculated that a shot from the gun will penetrate through two feet of solid wrought iron.—[Reading Eagle.

AN UNCARNIVOROUS CAT.

Mr. Arthur Stradling, C. M. Z. S., writes to the Field: "Ten years ago, when I was a student at St. George's Hospital, I became acquainted with Tom. Tom was the biggest and handsomest thoroughbred English cat I ever saw, and one of the most accomplished. He was born in the hospital, and really belonged neither to me nor my landlord, but had been brought there, I think, by Mr. Dalby, the now eminent surgeon, who occupied the rooms before me. Tom would run away from meat to devour uncooked potatoes. I have often seen him eat a basinful of the raw parings. Some of us, in the ardor of our newly acquired knowledge of the phenomena of digestion, used to hold great discussions as to whether this was right and justifiable on Tom's part, saying a great deal about unconverted starch and glucose, and ptyalin and pancreatine, and I think we came to the conclusion it was improper and unphysiological of him to act in this uncarnivorous manner; but he used to go on doing it all the same. Whether Tom is still in existence or not, I do not know; but if he is, I am sure he will corroborate what I say to any one who will call and 'stand' a pottle."

THE GIRL AND THE HEN.

There is a story, based, it would seem, on the doctrine of metempsychosis (though this is denied), and actually believed in by the Buddhists:

In the village of Pandapura, land by the town of Savatthi, there lived a girl, who by tasting a turtle's egg contracted a great liking for hen's eggs. The hen seeing the greedy girl eating the egg she laid daily bore a grudge against her, and a strong wish arose within her that in her rebirth she might become a ghoul, and eat up the girl's offspring. In the course of time the hen died and became a cat in the same house, and the girl on her death became a hen in her mother's house. Whenever the hen laid an egg the cat, out of grudge to her, ate it up. After this had happened several times the hen prayed that she might be so reborn as to be able to devour the cat and all her progeny. The girl dying and leaving the condition of a hen was reborn as a leopard, and the cat in due time reappeared as a deer; the deer gave birth to a fawn and the leopard, who still bore her a grudge, ate them both up. In this way, during the whole course of five hundred existences, each of them devoured the other in turn. In their last existence the girl regained her human form and the hen became a ghoul, and both were converted by the Buddhist's discourse, which was to this effect: No one must bear a grudge against another, saying, 'he has injured me, he has beaten me, he has robbed me, he has conquered me;' for if he does his hatred will be repeated successively in future existences; but if no grudge be borne enmity subsides."

Having given the story, we may as well now give the theory on which it is founded. One is about as intelligible as the other. Although stories like this deal with events in the rebirths of the Buddhas, we must not imagine that the doctrine of metempsychosis, of transmigration of souls, is any part of the Buddhist creed. The orthodox of this sect do not believe that any being has a soul or self as an independent entity, that can be transmitted. We need, indeed, a new term to be coined to express fully the Buddhist doctrine. The only real thing that can be reborn or transmitted is that result or sum total of an individual's actions that go to make up what we call character. Mr. Davids, in his Oriental writings, states the case very clearly with respect to the being who is to become a Buddha.

The Bodhisat is not supposed to have a soul which on the death of one body is transferred to another, but to be the inheritor of character acquired by the previous Bodhisats. The insight, the goodness, the moral and intellectual perfections which constituted Buddhahood could not, according to the Buddhist theory, be acquired in one lifetime; they were the accumulated result of the continual effort of many generations of successive Bodhisats. The only thing which continues to exist when a man dies is his karma, the result of his words, thoughts and deeds (literally his doings); and the curious theory, that this result is concentrated in some new individual, is due to the older theory of soul. WHOLESOMENESS OF GOOD COFFEE.

The general effect of coffee upon the nervous coat of the stomach is, unquestionably, a gentle tonic; and as most substances of that class have to a certain extent a tonic power, it is not hesitated to be recommended to invalids whose powers have been debilitated by stimulants of a more powerful character, such as fermented liquors, wines, spirits, &c. The custom of taking coffee after a late dinner, and just before retirement to bed, is bad, because its stimulant property upon the nerves of the stomach exerts a power destructive to sleep it promotes an activity to the mind, and gives a range to the imagination which prevents self-forgetfulness, that sure harbinger of repose.

WOMAN'S ATTRIBUTES. An English paper, whose editor is undoubtedly a married man, contains the following essay on woman: In them you behold the wild cat, the lamb and dove. If they can accomplish nothing by letting loose their untamed feline propensities, they give the juvenile sheep a trial; and if that fails they try the loving dove. With one or the other they are sure to effect their purpose. They are called the weaker sex; but with what propriety it is hard for me to imagine. They can draw like horses. They draw us to church, draw us to the theater, draw us into trouble, draw us to well, anywhere.

WHAT THEY SAY OF US ABROAD.

Under the heading of "A Nuisance at Newport," the Boston Journal has in the following special:

A most remarkable scene was witnessed at the meeting of the Board of Aldermen tonight, it being no less than an ex-Governor of Rhode Island presenting a monster remonstrance against the granting of licenses on Bellevue avenue, which is the fashionable thoroughfare, and pleading with the Aldermen to refuse the licenses. So disgraceful has that part of the avenue become that ladies have been grossly insulted and fear to pass by the liquor places. There are eight or ten rum shops within a radius of three hundred feet. The remonstrance was signed by a large number of summer residents and represents property of the value of six millions of dollars. It is not believed that the licenses will be granted.

Mrs. Jane G. Austin (nee Goodwin), author not only of "The Shadow of Moolock Mountain," but of "Cipher," "Moon-folk," "Mrs Beauchamp Brown," and "A Nameless Nobleman," as well as other volumes and much magazine literature, is of Plymouth Rock parentage, a direct descendant, in the third generation, of the Le Baron whose adventures are given in the "Nameless Nobleman" all of which however, are not matters of parish record. She has been a resident of Boston, or its immediate vicinity, since childhood; is a communicant in the Episcopal Church and combines an active devotion to its self-denying charities with a life of unflagging literary labor. She is understood to be preparing another volume for the Round Robin Series, and will spend the summer working upon it at Nantucket. While occupied so long and closely in literary pursuits, this lady shows no traces of the professional book-maker, but retains the easy vivacity of one at home in society, and the tastes and sympathies of domestic life. A YACHTING BOOK. The American Yacht List is compiled by Neils Olsen, steward of the New York Yacht club. The book gives the complete register of the yacht clubs of the United States and Canada including the name, owner, builder, dimensions, port belonging to and club connected with, of every yacht of any importance on this side of the Atlantic. Also lists of officers and addresses of secretaries of the clubs, with chromo lithographs of club pennants and the private signals of several clubs, etc. The whole will be found of much value to yachtsmen.

THE CITY OF NEWPORT.

An Ordinance relative to Nuisances.
It is ordained by the City Council of the City of Newport, as follows:
SECTION 1. Whenever the Board of Health of said city shall adjudge any privy-vault, sink, sink-drain, sink-spout, hog-sty or place where any swine shall be kept, cess-pool or drain in said city, to be a nuisance or the cause of a nuisance, then every person owning or using the same shall forthwith, after being notified of such adjudication, cease to use the same forever, and the person or persons owning or maintaining the same shall forthwith remove the same if ordered so to do by said Board, and shall re-construct the same if said Board shall so order and as said Board may direct.
SECTION 2. Every person who shall violate any provision of this Ordinance shall be fined twenty dollars or be imprisoned ten days for every such offence; and this ordinance shall go into effect immediately.

An Ordinance in amendment of and in addition to Chapter VI of "An Ordinance comprising the Ordinances of the City of Newport."
It is ordained by the City Council of the City of Newport, as follows:
SECTION 1. Sections 1 and 2 of said Chapter 6 are hereby amended so as to read as follows:
"Section 1. The judge of the Court of Probate shall hold said Court in the City Hall, on Monday of each and every week; and specially at such other times and places as necessity may require; and the said judge of probate, in fixing the fees of the Court of Probate, shall have a salary of five hundred dollars per annum, to be paid quarterly from the city treasury, in compensation for all services and duties performed by him.
"Section 2. The probate clerk, instead of fees, shall have a salary of twelve hundred dollars per annum, to be paid quarterly from the city treasury, as his entire and only compensation; provided, however, that said court and clerk shall collect and receive, for the use of the city, all lawful fees pertaining to said court and clerk respectively, or due to, earned or demanded by said clerk, as a recording officer or otherwise, or due to or demandable by or for said court; and said clerk shall pay all the same to the city treasurer of said city every month, rendering a true and particular account thereof, under oath, with every such payment.
"Provided also that on all applications for letters of administration, letters testamentary or letters of guardianship, the actual collection of any fees accruing prior to the granting of such letters may be postponed until such letters shall have been granted, but not longer."
SECTION 2. This ordinance shall take effect immediately.

SUNDRIES.

Miss Lillwhite, who is about to marry, remarked on Memorial day that she could sympathize with the brave boys in blue, having lost her hand in an engagement.—[Boston Transcript.

A Canada farmer discovered a pit containing 500 skulls. Must have been the site of an ancient theatre to have had so many dead heads in the pit.—[Boston Commercial Bulletin.

Two Americans were in a railway train which rolled into the depot of a city in southern Europe just as a sort of free fight was taking place among the hackmen. "What a row," exclaimed one. "What place is this?" "I'm not sure," his companion retorted, "but it is naughty enough to be Nice!"

Mr. Vennor has presented Jefferson Davis with a complete set of his almanacs. Now let Mr. Davis present the Canadian prophet with a copy of his history of the war, and our pity shall be divided impartially between the twain.—[Boston Transcript.

When a married man in Harlem was surprised by his wife with his arms around the pretty servant girl, a few evenings since, he rushed out of the house and had his hair shaved close to the skull with a horse clipper. He said he wanted to save the roots, anyhow.

Her first day at the shore. She was only a little puss of eight, and her knowledge of the deep is limited. Yesterday the beach was lined with "horse-shoes," driven up by the storm. She came running to the cottage, exclaiming, "Mamma, there's some awful queer fish down there." "What are they?" she was asked. "I don't know, mamma, I guess they're whales."—[Boston Sunday Budget.

A certain judge who has the misfortune to squint had three culprits before him. Addressing the first, but with an eye fixed upon the second, he says:—"Your name and domicile?" The second, who believes himself addressed, replies. The judge, intending to look at him, says with severity; "I did not speak to you." Whereat the third, upon whom the eye is now fixed, responds:—"No, your honor; and I didn't answer."

A very Hercules of a fellow, leaning upon the arm of a young woman, begged in the streets.

"Have pity," he said; "my wife is stricken blind."

"But you?"

"Oh, as for me, I'm all right, of course. But that's nothing; it is my wife who does the work of the family."

Testimonials.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse.
CHAS. MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"Inventors cannot employ a person more trustworthy or more capable of securing for them an early and favorable consideration of the patent office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

Boston, October 19, 1870.

R. H. EDDY, Esq.—Dear Sir,—You procured for me, in 1849, my first patent. Since then you have acted for and advised me in hundreds of cases, and procured many patents, reissues and extensions. I have occasionally employed the best agencies in New York, Philadelphia and Washington, but I still give considerable the whole of my business, in your line, and advise others to employ you.
Yours truly, GEORGE DRAPER.

Physicians
Have Signed or Endorsed the Following Remarkable Document:
Messrs. Seabury & Johnson, Manufacturing Chemists, 21 Platt St., New York:
Gentlemen:—For the past few years we have sold various brands of Porous Plasters. Physicians and the Public prefer Benson's Capcine Porous Plaster to all others. We consider them one of the very few reliable household remedies worthy of confidence. They are superior to all other Porous Plasters or Liniments for external use.
Benson's Capcine Plaster is a genuine Pharmaceutical product, of the highest order of merit, and so recognized by physicians and druggists.
When other remedies fail get a Benson's Capcine Plaster.
You will be disappointed if you use cheap Plasters, Liniments, Pads or Electrical Magnetic toys.

Newport Line!
SPECIAL NOTICE!
ON MONDAY, JUNE 20, THE STEAMER
Newport & Old Colony,
commanded by careful and experienced officers, will commence their trips for the summer season, between New York and Newport. These vessels have undergone a thorough overhauling, and extensive repairs and improvements have been made, greatly increasing their attractions. New carpets have been laid in the cabins. The ventilation of the dining saloon, by mechanical means, rendering the air at all times pure and the room agreeable, is an important feature that will, no doubt, be very much appreciated. Bathrooms have been placed on the Main Deck aft, making that part of the vessel a pleasant resort for smokers. It is the intention of the management to make this a STRICTLY FIRST-CLASS LINE, and nothing will be spared which will add to the comfort and convenience of passengers. It will be run for the accommodation of travel to and from the summer resorts and important points local to the Old Colony Railroad. There will be no Boston connection, and is especially designed for the better accommodation of the Newport travel. Double the former state rooms, heretofore assigned to that city, have been allotted for the present season.
From NEWPORT, Steamers will leave daily Sundays excepted, at 8.00 P. M., sharp, and arrive at New York about 6.00 A. M., making sure connections with all lines diverging. It is believed that the certainty of leaving Newport at a fixed hour, by this Line, will be appreciated.
From NEW YORK, Steamers will leave daily Sundays excepted, at 6.00 P. M., and arrive at Newport about 4.00 A. M. No pains will be spared to make the trip pleasant, and passengers may rest undisturbed until 7.00 A. M.
